

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

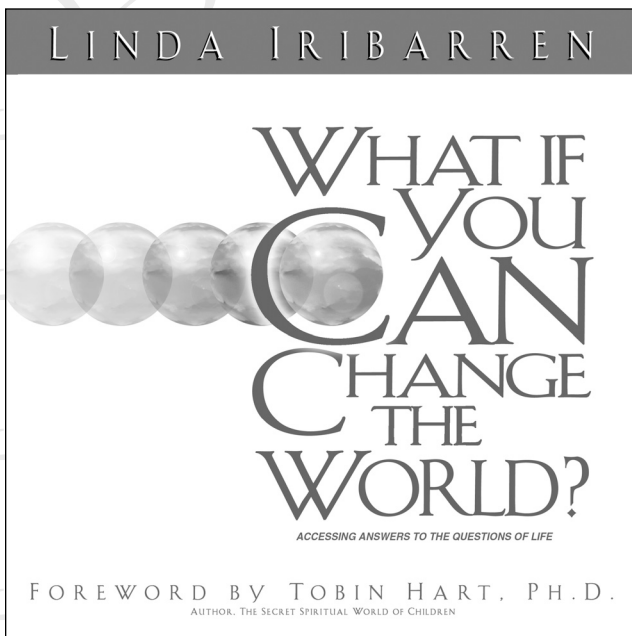

LINDA IRIBARREN has been consulting to Fortune 500 firms on business practices, leadership development, and innovative strategic management for more than two decades. Her ability to lead others through practical experience into deeply personal transformation has earned her an extraordinary reputation amongst a broad clientele in business, higher education and individuals.

She has been called a “joy-master” for her ability to help others find and successfully live from the core of their deepest spiritual being. She provides consulting and seminars based on the simple and profoundly effective self-actualization process that is now available in her book What if You Can Change the World?

Linda serves on the boards of numerous non profit organizations, and is particularly known for her work with gifted children as an Executive Board Member of ChildSpirit Institute.
